ABOUT

We are proud to be the only university preparatory high school in downtown Los Angeles. The American University Preparatory School in Los Angeles (AUP) will welcome its inaugural class in the Fall of 2014. AUP students will live together on site where we have developed one of the most unique learning environments in education.

Our students are immersed in the city, living together in a brand new, high tech environment where they learn from top-notch faculty and among themselves. Collaboration and project-based learning across the disciplines and subject areas is not only planned, it is expected. This is how students learn how to function in the "real world" once they leave AUP.

LOCATION

Our location is in the heart of downtown Los Angeles that has evolved into a true "city center" for the arts, culture, business, government, professional sports, theater, and entrepreneurship. We have integrated these resources into our curriculum, and we are building relationships for our students that will provide meaningful internships and community service opportunities for our students.

CURRICULUM

Our instructional methodology is centered on a blended learning approach. The combination of face-to-face instruction with technology-mediated activities provides students greater access to individualized and differentiated instruction, group collaboration, and communication with faculty and peers. We set our class sizes small so as to allow for increased participation from the students and more personal attention to the students' academic progress in meeting the school's curriculum objectives.

As part of the students' overall educational experience, AUP partners with domestic and international businesses and organizations to provide summer internship opportunities for students to gain real-world learning experiences.
